

An Apology

Humorous monologue by Samuel Stokes

(In a sad tone of voice, on the edge of tears)

Hey, guys. SkatingGamerMaestro here. This is the most difficult video I have ever had to make. I've made several very offensive comments in the last week that were extremely hurtful to my fans. I've removed the videos so you can't see them, but believe me, they were pretty awful. And I ask that you please don't read the AP News article about me. I mean, they didn't even publish my side of the story. And really, if you want the most reliable source of news, you should download the Honest Abe News Ticker app, available for iPhone and Android, where you can get all of the latest news sent directly to your smartphone. Just remember to use the code SkatingGamerMaestro at checkout for a 15% discount.

So, I know that I've lost a lot of trust from all of you over the last week. I only hope that over time I will be able to gain back your trust. If I could go back in time and change all of this, I would. Speaking of time, the Rolex company has many wonderful timepieces of the highest quality. In fact, I'm wearing one of their most exorbitantly expensive wristwatches on my arm right now, which I was able to afford because of the way you all have so faithfully supported my channel over the years. I'm so ashamed that I have dashed that faith with the remarkably insensitive comments I made last week. But where my failings caused you to lose faith, the Rolex company's timepieces will always faithfully tell you the time. And if you use the code SkatingGamerMasetro, you can get 5% off any timepieces priced at $500 or more.

But I digress...

I would now like to apologize to all the individuals and organizations that were devastated by my horrific comments over the last week. I am deeply sorry to Hans Christian Andersen and any surviving descendants, former Mr. Universe and former governor of California Arnold Schwarzenegger, to everyone that works for the McDonald's Corporation worldwide, and specifically to Grimace for the comments I made about his weight, to the New York Jets who I sincerely hope do not follow through on their threat to show up at my house for a special scrimmage, to Carrie Underwood and all the other pop stars that got their start on cattle-call style television talent shows, the citizens and officials of Rutland, Vermont, to the band Coldplay and anyone that has bought any of their albums, to anyone that uses the phrases "a whole 'nother" or "just kickin' it with my girls," to Miley Cyrus and Hannah Montana who I just recently discovered are the same person, to Harrison Ford and everyone who worked on the highly successful Indiana Jones and Star Wars franchises, to everyone currently living in the continent of Europe, and finally to my mother who told me to get a real job when I first started this channel. Since I became an overnight success, making hundreds of thousands of dollars a month, I have mercilessly taken every opportunity to mention it on every single video just to rub it in, and for that I am deeply sorry.

I'm afraid that's all the time we have for apologies today. Please hit that like button and subscribe so you can see the rest of my apologies in my next video. Peace out, my friends.
